TomTod Ideas

At TomTod, we think middle schoolers are pretty amazing. And not just because they exist in this awesome space where they still possess childlike imagination while discovering their place in the world.

We think middle schoolers are incredible humans because science says they are!

But most people don't exactly feel fuzzy feelings when they think of middle school.

And because of that, middle schoolers are forgotten about—told they have potential to do something "someday" instead of valued for their perspective now.

So we decided to do something about that.

Since 2012, we've partnered with middle schoolers to discover and love their community while finding ways to help it thrive. Using the latest research about early adolescent development, we create programming for students to explore idea creation through a community-focused, developmentally appropriate lens.

We are ball pit engineers. Blanket fort architects. Dance party organizers. Idea connoisseurs. Curators of experiential learning adventures.

In the short term, middle schoolers have come up with and implemented ideas that help the entire community thrive. Read the story about how the city of Norton was forever impacted by 5 middle school girls at tomtod.org/pathway.

When we invite middle schoolers to see themselves as community leaders now, they will later enter adulthood instilled with a sense of belonging in their community.

As our populations grow older and smaller, empowering students to see themselves as leaders in their community makes our cities and counties stronger today and tomorrow.

All the W's

What:

The Feast is a community-wide celebration of middle school students. The Feast provides TomTod supporters with an exclusive experience to connect with middle schoolers and opportunities to give throughout the night. At the same time, students are presented with the opportunity to connect with donors and share their stories.

We don't do raffle baskets, ever. Instead, we focus on what is really important—the middle schoolers. Students are the stars of this night, and it's their stories that make donors want to support them.

We want people's experience to be unlike any other fundraising gala they've attended. While the tone we strive for is formal and honoring, the night is also full of celebration, fun, and the most delicious food!
